

Commercial America Volume 14

By Commercial Museum

RareBooksClub. Paperback. Book Condition: New. This item is printed on demand. Paperback. 130 pages. Dimensions: 9.7in. x 7.4in. x 0.3in. This historic book may have numerous typos and missing text. Purchasers can usually download a free scanned copy of the original book (without typos) from the publisher. Not indexed. Not illustrated. 1917 edition. Excerpt: . . . American countries have been sending direct to the United States, some of them through the Panama Canal, goods which have heretofore gone to Europe and been reexported to this country from England, Holland, Germany and France. Owing to the fact that the United States is building, primarily for use in the war, over 2, 000, 000 tons of shipping, it will, if the war continues for any length of time, have a larger mercantile marine than any other country in the world except the United Kingdom. This will make it possible for trade between the United States and foreign countries to be carried on in American bottoms. Much trade that has heretofore gone to Europe will therefore come direct to the United States, and large quantities of raw materials, as rubber, nitrates, jute, silk, wool, hides and skins, and food products, such as coffee,...

READ ONLINE
[4.39 MB]

Reviews

A fresh e-book with a brand new perspective. This is certainly for anyone who statte that there had not been a really worth reading. I am just happy to explain how this is the very best publication i have go through in my individual lifestyle and may be he best pdf for ever.

-- Margarett Roob

The very best publication i possibly study. This is certainly for anyone who statte there was not a worth looking at. I am just very happy to tell you that this is basically the best pdf i actually have study inside my individual life and could be he very best pdf for possibly.

-- Darlene Blick